

LESBIAN, GAY, BISEXUAL, TRANSGENDER, QUEER / SEXUALITY STUDIES

The LGBTQ / sexuality studies minor involves the examination of sexuality and gender through an interdisciplinary lens. You will have the opportunity to analyze sexuality and gender as social constructions that vary throughout history and in different societies, learn about the experience and histories of LGBTQ people and communities, and examine how sexuality and gender intersect with other forms of inequality and difference.

Experiences and Opportunities

Join Students Advocating Gender Equality (SAGE), a student organization that seeks to provide a place of action, discussion, and academic development for students interested in feminist and gender concerns on campus and the Lincoln community, or Spectrum UNL, dedicated to the promotion and wellness of all gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender, queer and allied students and staff.

Attend sponsored events such as the No Limits Conference, an interdisciplinary conference on women's and gender studies that has hosted hundreds of presentations from students, academic departments and community members. The colloquium series features local and national scholars presenting innovative research. It's a great opportunity to interact with these scholars both formally and informally.
